TARILKA

1. DESCRIPTION

Tarilka is catering company that will plan your on-site banquet or anything else quickly and with the best quality. We take care of all the worries – from purchasing products and selecting music to cleaning the room after the event.

Why would you choose on-site banquet?

Catering recently became popular, because it is easier and more profitable to book banquet rather prepare everything for a big quantity of people on your own, after such preparation you would not enjoy the party. That's why we are here for you.

What do we offer:

1. Vast assortment of dishes
2. Professional serving
3. Unique ideas and decisions for the decoration of tables and dishes
4. Large selection of locations
5. All the necessary accessories for the celebration
6. Individual integrated approach to each celebration – from children's birthday to wedding party
7. Full on-site buffet service

2. TARGET AUDIENCE

The target audience for a catering business depends on the type of catering services offered. Here are some common target groups:

- Office workers: business hosting meetings, conferences, corporate events; office lunches and staff appreciation events; networking events and executive retreats.
- Social events and private clients: weddings and engagement parties; birthday celebrations and anniversaries; family reunions and holiday gatherings.
- Educational and Institutional clients: schools, colleges, universities (for events, cafeterias, meal plans etc.); hospitals and healthcare facilities; government offices and organisations.

- Niche and specialty markets: luxury catering for high-end clients; dietary-specific catering (vegan, keto, gluten-free, halal, kosher); food truck or pop-up event catering.

3. GOALS

- Achieve high customer satisfaction ratings and positive reviews
- Introduce new menu items and adapt to food trends and diets (e.g. vegan, gluten-free)
- Offer healthier, organic, or culturally specific food options
- Solve the problem of unreliable or low-quality catering services in my area.

4. UNIQUE SELLING POINTS

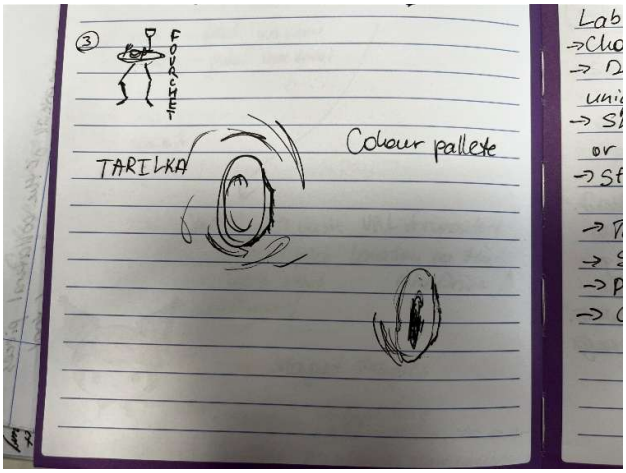

- In Tarilka, I want to see diet-specific menus, and try including mostly every specification, because I want that every person will free to eat whatever they want, and they actually can do without a fear that they allergic to eat or not stick to their diet
- Farm-to table ingredients, to serve locally sourced and organic ingredients
- Themed catering – clients could set specific theme for their celebration like vintage, futuristic or cultural themes.

ELEMENTS

1. LOGO

When I started thinking of what I am going to do for portfolio, my mom talked to me about her new idea of business, and when she said its catering, the idea of plate look came to my mind.

First sketches were not accurate, because at the start, I wanted to show movement with the logo, as plate is moving as bowling ball.

So, after several times of trying to figure out the style of logo, I ended up with this:

It is outlines of the plate shape, with a food in the centre and logotype at the left bottom. All of this was made in Illustrator with shapes tool, pen tool and type on the path tool. This design representing the name of the brand – Tarilka – which means plate. I did not really want to overload the logo with shapes, so tried to use as less as possible, so I could follow the rule of simplicity, and with gestalt principle of closure, users can see the plate on the background.

The palette to all collateral of the brand is the same, because they would represent brand's identity.

Colour Palette:

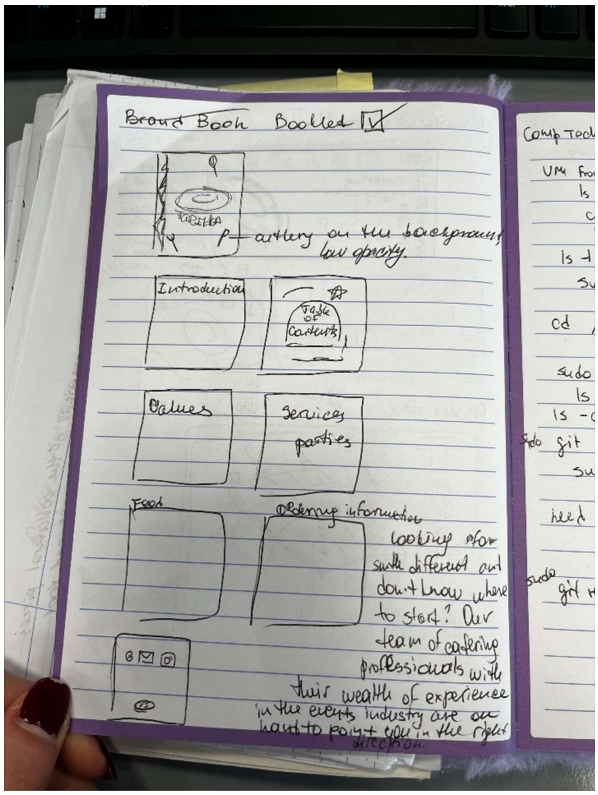

1. Space Cadet #25344f;
2. Slate Gray #617891;
3. Goldenrod #e9b03c;
4. Khaki #f0cd67;
5. Palegoldenrod #f4e39d;
6. Papayawhip #f8efd5;
7. Barlywood #edad81;
8. Peru #cf6f44;

This colour palette was chosen to make a balance between professionalism, warmth and feeling of hunger, which are key elements of a successful catering business. Also, these colours evoke feeling of freshness and trust, so future clients are confident in the quality of our services. Overall, the palette is used to evoke emotions that will align with brand's core values.

As for typography I used Bagel Fat Regular font, as it is mostly appealing to the aesthetic of the brand.

2. BOOKLET

I wanted to make all collateral in same design, so it shows brand's identity. That's why all my pieces of portfolio contain some images that traced with low fidelity filter, and other vector graphics of food that are mostly in watercolour drawing style.

Purpose for this item is to introduce customers to the brand, services we are providing and main values.

The document was made in the InDesign application with usage of all acceptable tools.

The inspiration came from websites such as: https://www.mygfguide.com/paprika-herb-chicken-roasted-vegetable-quinoa-bowl/

https://www.feastingathome.com/vegan-dinner-recipes/

In this document I tried to stick to the main concept of the brand and gestalt principal of symmetry, so it would be easier or customers to gather information.

3. LEAFLET

Leaflet is more likely same with booklet but less information. I tried to attach same style. Also, I used here several gestalt principles and design rules to create a visually appealing and effective layout.

Proximity – related items are grouped together, like examples of occasions, are made vertically with consistent spacing.

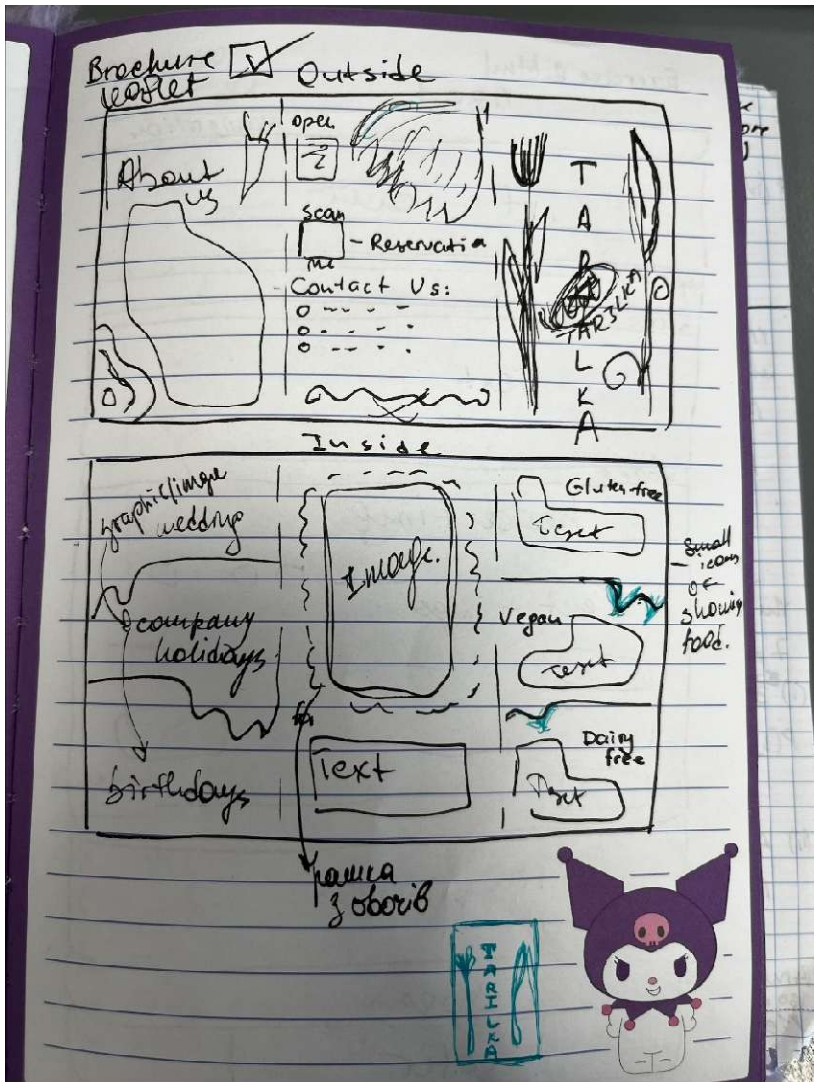

Similarity - similar fonts, colours and styles creating a sense of unity. Icons, text blocks, headers all follow a consistent style and colour palette. Also, food illustrations are in the watercolour-style, reinforcing visual concept.

Continuity – the eye is guided smoothly from one section to the next, for example, the vertical fork and spoon illustration draws attention to the brand name "TARILKA" that is in linear path.

Visual Hierarchy – I changed the opacity of the illustrations, so they are enhancing and engaging the customer without overwhelming the text.

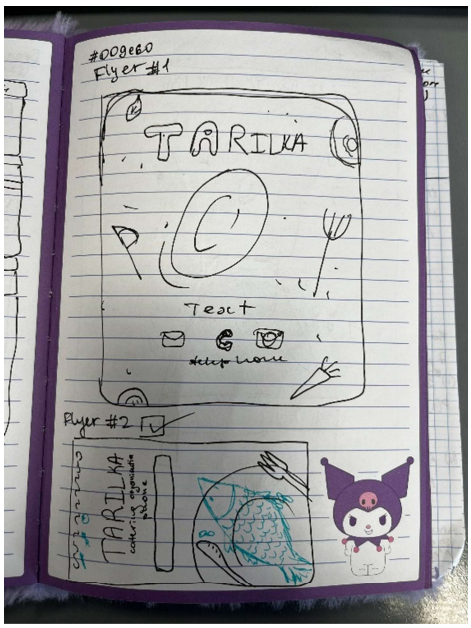

As you can see my sketching is different to the final product, because when I tried to lay out everything as I was thinking of, the leaflet looked messed.

For inspiration I was gathering Pinterest, as its helpful tool for me.

4. FLYER

For flyer I wanted to make something that will be recognisable and in addition minimalistic, as other parts of collateral mostly use illustrations as much as it is possible.

The design fundamentals that used here:

- Figure/ground – the bold fish and past water coloured illustration clearly pops up as it against the white background. Navy plate and cutlery enhance separation between elements.
- Colour palette – as I tried to limit myself, this scheme creates cohesion and keeps it visually appealing.
- Visual hierarchy – "TARILKA" dominates the page as the brand name, "CATERING" is secondary but still emphasized, as used different font, and contact info sits at the bottom, grouped in the box.

It is a little bit different from sketch, as hierarchy did not really worked when I followed my sketch idea, but main idea worked pretty well, as using fish and pasta on a plate is eye-catching and memorable.

5. POSTER

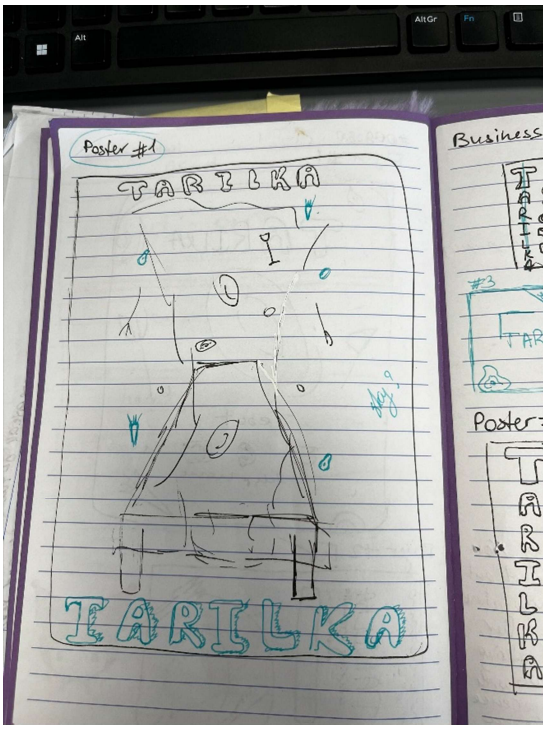

I chose illustrative style for poster too, because it fits the brand's aesthetic. The floating table, food items and the curved layout all contribute to memorable poster. This echoes the modern dining experience, as I want to show that brand also follows modern trends and always check them. Also, there is a metaphor behind the scenes about food culture and waste, which shows how convenience and excess replaced connection and sustainability, so the brand can more advertise on sustainable and eco-friendly campaigns.

Design principles:

1. Contrast – bright yellow table catch the audience eye straight away
2. Movement – diagonal flow of the table and curved path of ingredients and cutlery guide the viewer's eye through the composition.
3. Asymmetry – in the poster I wanted to try my favourite rule asymmetry, and so through different sizes, shapes and colours I tried to create balance

When I was sketching ideas, I really wanted to show the movement of the tablecloth, but in illustrator it was hard to represent, then I tried to find references in free stock, and when I traced them, it didn't work anyway. So, I changed the idea with big table, when I created the movement of table I made that ingredients were above it, and still I didn't like it because it looked like a mess. So, again the style changed.

For the poster idea I did not use any references and inspirations, this idea came to my mind during class, and I sticked to it, because during the process I had another thought to make like a man in suit and instead of head, it would be spread of cutlery and ingredients. With this idea I was inspired by one Japanese designer, and when I tried to do it, I asked my friends, they said it is cool idea, but not fit into your aesthetic, so I came back to my first attempt.

6. BUSINESS CARD

With business card was not really complicated, but anyway there were some challenges.

Overall, with business card I tried to show warm, modern food brand. The visual language contains water-coloured illustrations with a clean layout to show love for food.

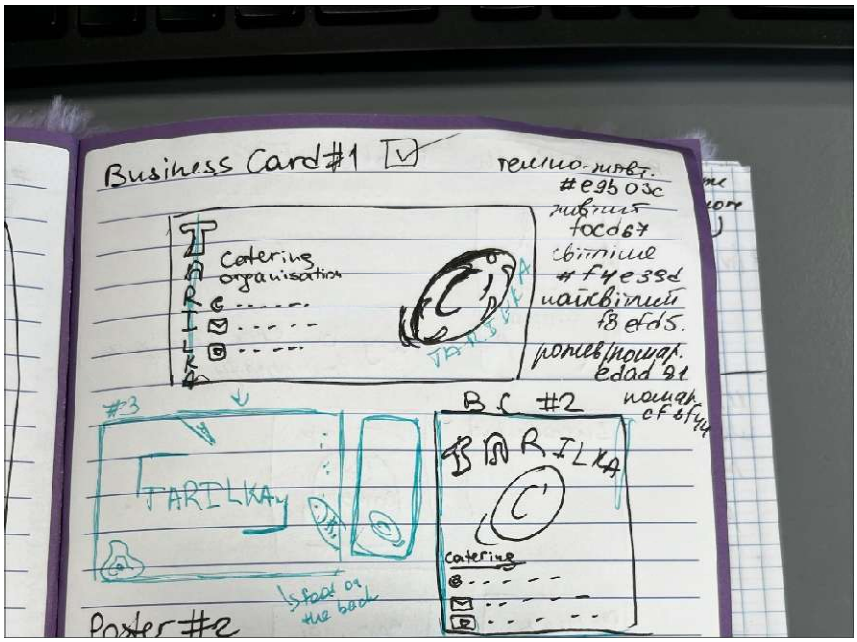

The use of illustrations gives the card a handcrafted feel which is ideal for a catering business, as we trying to focus on details and quality of ingredients.

In this version, I used warm colours of our palette, that creates light and inviting mood.

Design principles:

Front side – name appears in the centre within the box, making the brand name stand out. Also, as I changed opacity of background images, they add visual interest without overwhelming the eye.

Back side – the business logo is placed at the top, immediately identifying the business. Visual hierarchy also has been used for clear and straightforward information gathering.

The challenge for business card was to decide what size to choose, vertical or horizontal, and as you can see by previous images, I choose vertical, and I explain this choice. It was easier to apply visual hierarchy with vertical position rather than horizontal.

REFERENCES

Mostly for references and inspirations I used Pinterest (illustrations and layouts of some parts of collateral).

Also, I used Chat GPT to generate some parts of text.

OVERALL BRRANDING

TARILKA's branding try to fit both creativity and ethical exposition. It positions the business as thoughtful, modern and serious about the quality of its services.

Visual Style Overview:

Style: artistic, friendly, illustrative, conceptual.

Palette: deep blues and yellows – contrasting each other, making the feeling of different sides of the brand

Typography: curved, dynamic, soft rounded sans-serif, some outstanding fonts for heading, creating balance and visual hierarchy

Imagery: cute food illustrations which should evoke appetite and joy.

In TARILKA's collateral shows contrast between chaotic food spill e.g. poster and organised layout e.g. business card. Also, as I named it in different language, I want to show that brand brings cultural values too. Through bold visuals, soft illustrative styles, and meaningful metaphors, TARILKA tells a story, making it more than a catering business, but a thoughtful experience.
